

I'm not even able to use the local traffic and weather until I move to the Minneapolis / St. Paul area in June 2004. I'm anxiously looking forward to using the service once it goes active sometime this year for the Twin cities. This sounds like the same time of stupid crap that the Satellite TV companies have had to go through because of the big monopolizing cable companies whining about losing viewers. Now it looks like the local radio stations are crying to the government because they are losing listeners to their pitiful radio stations.
